TEXT : Women's education.

Every African country has accepted the importance of women's education, but there is no widespread agreement about how important it is. Some believe in equality between sexes ; in that case, the same proportions of girls and boys should be educated up to the same level. But what if many of the girls want to get married earlier ? Will they be forced to stay on at college or in a further training institution ? Equality between the sexes would also mean that jobs should be given equally to men and women. But are the men going to idle and see their children starve , while an unmarried woman takes the job and spends her wages on clothes and other things ? Perhaps equality between the sexes is an unrealistic goal since there are such profound differences between men and women.
